W. M. S. MEETING

The Women's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Osterhout on Thursday, October 17th, when a special program was arranged to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the W.M.S. since union.

A very interesting part of the program was the story told by Mrs. Hill of how the W.M.S. was started in Irma fifteen years ago, when some of the ladies had to drive ten miles to democrats to attend the meetings.

During the meeting Mrs. M. Johnson took the part of the "spirit of 1935" calling up the different officers and members to tell what has been accomplished during the past ten years.

A cup of tea and social half-hour was indulged in at the close.

An invitation had been given the Irma Auxiliary to attend the birthday party put on by the Wainwright W.M.S. celebrated ten years of union, two cars of ladies drove to Wainwright that same evening when a very fine program with Mrs. (Dr.) Courier presiding was put on by the Wainwright ladies. A very enjoyable social time was spent at the close when refreshments were served by the Wainwright ladies and some time was spent in renewing acquaintances between the two auxiliaries.

Our next meeting will be held on November 21st, at the home of Mrs. Arnold, when the new study book on missions in Africa will be started. We ask all the ladies to remember this date and endeavor to be present.

NOTES OF INTEREST OF BUSY KINSELLA

The Ladies' Aid chicken supper proved a real success again this year, there being about 225 present. Viking, Irma and Quinte were well represented.

Miss Daisy Henick spent from Wednesday until Saturday as a guest of Mrs. Kernes.

Miss Jean Smith, who has been at the home of Mrs. Burnett this past summer, was called to Edmonton last Wednesday, where she had prospects of getting a school.

Mrs. J. Allen is in the Viking hospital at the time of this writing suffering from a cold which settled in her head and throat.

Dr. Tuttle, who filled the pulpit for our anniversary services gave us a wonderful sermon on Sunday and the music furnished by the senior and junior choirs was well rendered.

Mr. and Mrs. Witton drove to the city Sunday where Mrs. Witton will remain for a time.

The local creamery was broken in Wednesday night, and Mr. Neal's watch and adding machine, along with $4 worth of stamps were stolen.

BY THE WAY

Save the juice from canned pine-apple and the liquid from maraschino cherries to use when making fruit punch.

Chocolate or spice cake, biscuits, griddle cakes and johnny cake are nice if sour milk is used instead of sweet, with soda in proportion of one-half teaspoon (level) to each cup of sour milk.

The Relief Expenditure Burden

With the Federal elections over and the political complexion of the next Parliament of Canada defined, the government of the country will be faced with a number of important problems to decide, and not the least of these is the question of the steps which must be taken to ease the debt burden of governmental units in Western Canada.

By governmental units is meant the governments of the provinces and of the municipalities, urban and rural.

During the past five years the public finances of the Western Canadian provinces and of the municipalities, which are their creatures, have been strained to the breaking point to meet the problems which drought and general unemployment have brought in their train.

Not only has the public purse of the Western provinces and of the municipalities been depleted in the struggle to ensure that their citizens should not starve, freeze or go shelterless in their grim fight against great odds, but they have been obliged to pledge their future resources, to keep an alarming extent, to enable the citizens of the present generation to keep their heads above water.

In these three prairie provinces millions of dollars have been spent to furnish a substantial percentage of the population with food, fuel and clothing, and in the urban centres with shelter as well; and this, despite the fact that the Federal government has also contributed large sums to bolster up the provinces and the municipalities in their fight to ensure the necessities of life for their people.

In addition, however, to the money which has been expended out of current revenues these provincial and municipal governments have pledged many more millions of dollars against the credit of the future, earning power of the people, a debt which will have to be liquidated in the future either by the taxpayers of to-day or by the rising generation, or a combination of both.

Without going into statistics which, at the best, make dry reading, it is axiomatic to say that the indebtedness which has been piled up on this count, directly and indirectly, reaches a staggering total and has passed the figure which is within the competence of these governmental units to meet from existing resources.

One of the conditions contributing to the existing condition of the finances of the Western provinces and municipalities is the inequability of the distribution of the tax burden as between individual taxpayers and the inequity of the distribution of the bases of taxation as, between the federal, provincial and municipal governing entities.

The financial situation which has developed as a result of these inequities is one which will have to be faced and remedied by the newly-elected Parliament if the Western provinces and municipalities are to remain solvent and are to be enabled to extricate themselves from a position which has become intolerable.

So far as the municipal governments are concerned, their financial plight has been accentuated by practical limitation to reality as, at least, the principal tax base, and this applies to both rural and urban, only in different degrees. Land has more than passed the limit of its endurance as a source of revenue for governments. Other spheres of taxation are denied to the municipalities, and this is one discriminatory feature which will have to be remedied.

In seeking additional sources of revenue municipalities are cramped by legislative action of their superior provinces and the provinces in turn are hampered by Federal authority.

What is needed is a nation-wide conference in which the municipalities can get together with the provinces and the Dominion and, in a spirit of tolerance and recognition of the difficulties of one another, come to an agreement which will provide for specific delimitation of spheres of taxation and a definite understanding that the several governmental units will not in future encroach upon one another's taxation preserves.

This understanding should be translated into legislative enactment and if it involves amendments to the British North America Act, as undoubtedly it would, efforts should be made to secure the necessary sanction.

The problem of relief, it has been reiterated by competent authorities time and again, is a national one. The provinces have said so. The urban municipalities have said so and the rural municipalities hold the same view, even if they have not adopted resolutions in confirmation to that effect.

If the Federal government is not prepared to recognize the situation in the west as a national problem, the only alternative is for the Federal government to make it possible for the provinces and municipalities to liquidate past, present and future expenditures by providing them with the machinery to levy the money where the money is available.

Strange City In Arabia

Streets Of Lamu Lined With Ruins Of Many Palaces

Lamu, an ancient Arabian city of mystery, is built on a little island not far from Mombasa, in the Kenya Colony. The streets of this strange municipality, which are so narrow that the sun scarcely even shines in them, are lined with the ruins of many palaces. The inhabitants of Lamu are descendants of the old Persians who founded a colony on the island about A.D. 700, and are very proud of their aristocratic origin and traditions, for more than a thousand years their ancestors had produced great poets, architects and jewelers. The population makes a living by cultivating coco-palms, by fishing and collecting ambergris.

Norway Has Queer Tax

"Sparrow tax" is a levy most annoying to the farmers of Jyklyven, Norway, and is one of the most unusual in Europe. For prayers offered up by the pastor of the Nyrikken Church at Bergen against crop ruination by the birds, each farmer must pay 30 kroner annually, or about $7.50. The tillers of the soil say that they receive little for their money, since the sparrows continue to attack the harvests.

Arabs Find New Work

Motor Car Has Changed History Of The Bedouins

The London Sunday Express says the Bedouins in Arabia have, from time immemorial, lived by transporting goods across the desert on their camels. To-day the motor car is displacing the camel as the ship of the desert. So the Bedouins are seeking a new livelihood. In the Arab kingdoms they have begun to grow corn where it never grew before. They are settling down and building cities for the first time. The motor car is changing the map of the world. It is changing the history of the peoples.

Rear Admiral Byrd Says Dominion Pilots Best For Arctic Exploration

A tribute to Canada's north country flyers was paid at Toronto by Rear-Admiral Byrd, famous United States Antarctic explorer. Replying to Mayor Simpson's welcome at a civic reception outside of city hall, Admiral Byrd said Canadians knew more of polar flying than any other pilots. Long experience flying over snow and ice and in sub-zero weather made them excellent pilots for Arctic or Antarctic expeditions, he said.

Beauty In Old London

Pictures Of Infinite Variety Can Be Seen From Great Bridges

Old St. Paul's, perched high on Ludgate Hill, once a commanding position, is being gradually crowded out by other buildings. The most impressive sight of Wren's venerable cathedral is that looking from Fleet-street up Ludgate Hill, I have heard jaded newspaper men, familiar with Fleet-street at all hours of the day and night, grow lyrical about the loveliness of that glimpse of St. Paul's at dawn.

A great white London seems to have sprung up like magic. But it has not obliterated the past, and one of the charms of a walk through the city is the unexpected glimpses one gets through its narrow courts and alleys of old taverns, little shops, and ivied churches that have stood unchanged through the centuries.

It has been said that one cannot walk a hundred yards in London without seeing a bunch of trees. That is almost completely true. In fact, there are enough trees in the London streets and squares to make up, if placed together, a very respectable forest. Who has ever noted that there are over seventy trees in the Strand?

But nothing excels the river views. Wherever one looks, or from whatever angle of the seven great bridges from the Tower to Lambeth, there is picture after picture of infinite variety and beauty. At night, when the Embankment sparkles with its thousand lights, the view from the bridges of London's curving waterfront has the quality of pure magic. No Whistler nocturne could do it justice. —Overseas Daily Mail.

Tokio Subway Ultra-Modern

One Is Better Than Those Of Other World Cities

According to passengers recently returned to Seattle, Wash., on the Presidential Jefferson, Tokio's subway combines the best features of the New York sub, the Paris metro, and the London tube, with few added innovations of its own. Coins in the slot machines are magnified, so that guards may detect spurious money. White enamel straps snap back into place when not in use. Automatic doors have soft edges which may bump but not scratch the slightly tardy passenger. Cars carrying 200 passengers leave a station every three minutes.

Beautiful Layers Of Varied Colors Fall On Australian Alps

Colored snow fell on the Australian Alps for the second time this winter. It changed the landscape around Hotman Heights from white to chocolate within a few hours, while at Mt. Buller the inhabitants woke to see a bright red layer on the snow, half an inch deep. By noon heavy snow had blotted out the red layer. The most remarkable fall was at St. Bernard's Hospice, where pink snow fell in two layers, an inch and a half thick, with a 6-inch strip glittering white snow sandwiched in between.

BEFORE you take any preparation for the relief of headaches, or the pain of rheumatism, neuritis, or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with "Aspirin".

We say this because, before the discovery of "Aspirin," most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians, being held for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of "Aspirin" largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who had suffered for years in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: "Aspirin" is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

"Aspirin" Tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company, Limited. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a gay, impulsive girl of seventeen with a care beyond her choice in her costume for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all he had, and suddenly, it is discovered that the city of Denver is a simpler method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home on which seems to be impossible conditions.

After much consideration Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge.

Nancy set out one afternoon to climb to the top of a hill so as to obtain a view of the surrounding landscape and misses the path. Aurora Tubbs had told her to follow. A truck comes along the road, driven by Matthew Adam, and she asks him which way to go. The truck stops, he looks around, and then goes on to Cousin Columbine's. There Mark Adams tells Nancy that his brother Luke has broken his leg, and that he has been unable to help out while Luke's leg grows better. With Jack away, Nancy finds that she is lonesome, and having no books to read, the idea of starting a public library comes to her. She goes to her parents to send all the books they could spare and all they could induce others to do.

Nancy's parents and friends gave the money and supplies, and a sizeable box arrived in due course. Father Adam painted a sign for the library, and the Adam boys worked on the shelves for the books and decorations to make the room a success.

Jack Nelson, Matthew Adam, and Nancy go to the prairie home of Matthew's uncle for the ride, and after Nancy and Jack leave for home, they are caught in a blizzard. Blinded by the snow, they are lost, and with the full fall of school children, which was stalled across the road with its back wheel resting in a snow-filled gully. Their car being wrecked, Jack and Nancy stay with the children and try to get them to their home. Nancy finds that Jack sets out for help in the blizzard. He succeeds in finding help, and the party of children and Nancy are rescued. As a result of the exposure, Nancy's feet are badly frozen, and Jack is seriously ill with pneumonia, but both of them recover.

Now Go On With The Story

CHAPTER XX.

Long as he lived Matthew Adam was never to forget the terror that possessed him when, after hours of tramping snowdrifts, he stepped into that stalled school bus. And, per-happily, his first glance fell not on Nancy, but on the mound of apparently lifeless children beyond her. Then, all in a breath, they focused on the girl herself—a girl only half clad, her hands moving mechanically in an effort to bring circulation into a boy's small feet which were, it transpired later, not frozen so badly as her own. Her head, drooping forward on her breast, lifted with difficulty as the door opened, then dropped again, but not too soon for Matthew to have seen the glassy look that clouded her blue eyes.

"Nancy!" he cried. Just that. He was on his knees—had snatched at the fur coat and wrapped it round her. It seemed to him that the girl fought back the overpowering drowsiness by a supreme effort. One icy hand groped for his cheek, as if to make sure that he was flesh and blood. She struggled to speak—struggled so valiantly that Matt's eyes misted with pity when, after a moment, the words came.

"Find... Jack... And... and then take... the children... I am... all... all... all right..."

After that Nancy knew nothing at all for a long time. She retained only a confused memory of rousing for a moment to find herself in a room that seemed very full of people; wondering why Matthew Adam and a strange woman were packing snow about her legs and hearing a child cry out as if in pain.

She recalled that later, (how much later it was impossible to say), she had cried herself with such pain as she had not imagined; and then things blurred again. Even the long ride to the hospital was but a dim remembrance of being wrapped in blankets and held tenderly in strong arms. Once, they told her, she opened her eyes and asked for Jack, but drew again before the answer came.

Her first clear memory was walking to a sense of intense suffering, and seeing bright sunlight dancing across her bed. It was a white bed in a small, white room; and a white-clad woman was speaking to a shadow in the door. Nancy's eyes travelled upward and saw a cap. So the woman was a nurse. And this must be a hospital. "But why am I here?" she asked herself confusedly. "And what has happened to my legs?" Then she remembered: Those dreadful hours of cold and hunger—those helpless children—Jack facing the blizzard all alone. And suddenly Nancy was just a little girl again, a frightened little girl who yearned for the comfort that had never failed her when life seemed cruel—and life had never been so cruel before. She said, her voice breaking a little: "I want—I want my mother."

"Thank God!" said the nurse; and the tall shadow in the doorway turned into Matthew Adam—a gaunt and haggard Matthew to be sure, but comfortably familiar amid the strangeness. Two quick strides brought him to Nancy's bed, and bending down he lifted one of her hands gently.

"Thank God!" he said, just like the white nurse; and then anticipating the question she was too weak to ask: "Jack got there, Nancy. He reached Bartlett's before we did; but the wires were down so Mrs. Bartlett couldn't call for help, and her husband was hunting for cattle in the drifts. But if Jack hadn't gone there's no knowing when we'd have found you, Nancy. He was all in, of course, but—he will be all right."

This was Matt's verdict, not the doctor's; nor did he add that Jack was only a room away, fighting pneumonia. Time enough for that knowledge when she was stronger. Then the nurse warned: "That's all for now, Mr. Adam," and Nancy opened her eyes, which had grown sleepy, and asked: "The—children?"

"All safe," Matt answered; then, as a cry of pain escaped her, "Oh, Nancy! Is it all bad as that?"

It was very bad, indeed, but with returning strength came self-control, and though there were times in the hours to come when her face switched with anguish, no whimper passed the girl's lips again.

Later she woke to find Cousin Columbine beside her bed.

"How do you feel, child?" The crisp old voice was shaken with emotion. Nancy scarcely recognized it.

"How's—Jack?" she asked. "I'm stronger than Jack. I... I..."

The weak words lagged, and Cousin Columbine said quickly: "Your brother's making a brave fight, child. I always said he had the courage of a pioneer. And you have, Nancy. I—I am so proud of you."

Nancy said nothing for a little while. Scenes from those tragic hours were crowding back.

"You were right—about the—the weather, Cousin Columbine," she admitted in a curious, small voice. And then, a tear slipping from beneath her lashes: "I wish... I..."

"What do you wish, dear?" asked Nancy, too spent to manage it. "I'm only a—little homesick," she acknowledged.

A nurse came in just then with a strange doctor; and Cousin Columbine went out. They looked at her legs, and brought another doctor to look at them. Nancy wondered what they were thinking, but was too tired to ask and dropped asleep before they left the room.

It was night when she opened her eyes again. "A dim light burned, and a different nurse was there, and a new doctor. No, it wasn't a doctor, Nancy saw after a moment. It was just Matt Adam. She heard the woman say to Miss Nelson that her niece was sleeping, and that after a consultation the doctors felt that, after all, she wouldn't lose her feet.

Now how in the world, mused Nancy, only half awake, could you lose your feet even if you wanted to? That nurse was crazy. She spoke as if your feet could be mislaid like a pair of gloves or a pocketbook or something! The idea made her almost laugh. Then, realizing that Matthew was about to leave, a wave of homesickness swept over her again, and she protested.

"Don't go, Matt!" Again the unexpected voice startled her nurse; but Matthew came close, and stood there looking down at her. Then some one turned up a light, and Nancy saw how unbelievably tired he was.

THE STORY OF A STRANGE EXPERIMENT

By Major C. H. Douglas

From The Sunday Express, London.

(Reprinted by request)

Much has been said and written about what is called "The Douglas Plan." It is said, too, that Mr. Aberhart is going to carry out that plan in Alberta, where he has just won an emphatic victory in a general election.

Actually the phrase is misleading. I have no cut-and-dried plan which I should apply in all countries or circumstances.

I have an objective—the freeing of credit from the control of the bankers and its equitable distribution among the people to whom it rightly belongs.

That objective can be attained will obviously vary with the particular political and economic situation in each country and province. Alberta will be the first state in which a determined effort will be made by the government to attain it.

I envisage that effort as a war, and I can no more disclose the moves which my friends will make in this than the chief of staff in the French army can disclose his plans for a march on Berlin.

I have been for some time an employee of the Alberta government. I pay two visits a year to the country to give advice on financial and economic questions.

I have not yet received a summons from the new Prime Minister, but I understand that his party have authorised him to seek my advice, and I shall probably be leaving for Canada shortly.

Ideal Country

I regard Alberta as by no means an unfavorable site for the first practical trial of my ideas. The best country for all their application would be New Zealand, and I am confident that we shall see a government pledged to Social Credit in power before many years have passed.

In Alberta you have a vigorous people and a land with immense natural resources. Sixty per cent of the production of the state is agricultural, chiefly wheat. Twenty-five per cent consists of manufactures and fifteen per cent of minerals. You have therefore already a reasonably balanced economy.

In time, if my ideas work out, the proportion of manufacture will increase and the state will become more largely self-supporting, though this is by no means essential to the success of my proposals.

Mr. Aberhart, the new Prime Minister, is a man of magnetic personality and a magnificent orator. In the heat of the election he went rather beyond any proposals that I have made, but it is entirely false to say that I am in disagreement with him. I admire him greatly.

He was a successful headmaster of a school in Calgary. He is a deeply religious man and a fine Rugby footballer. Above all, he has a flexible and receptive mind.

His followers in the new parliament have a high level of education, not on the whole inferior to the men they have defeated. They have had no previous governmental experience in Alberta, but many of them are experienced administrators.

One, Mr. Anderson, was, I believe, a civil servant in Burma. I have no doubt that the men are capable of tackling the formidable task which they have set themselves.

Briefly, that task may be war with the banks. The cause of our present troubles lies not in a failure of production or a decline in consumption, but in a breakdown in the system of distribution.

In Alberta there is a great hoard of wheat left over from last year's harvest. In New York and Manchester and China, and even in Edmonton and Calgary, there are men and women without enough to eat.

The reason for this deplorable state of affairs is that the monetary system of the world has failed to adapt itself to modern conditions.

Modern money consists of two things, cash and credit. Of these, credit is by far the more important, and is used in all important business transactions.

But its creation is controlled by a few individuals whose interests frequently conflict with those of the rest of the community, and who work primarily for their own interests—the bankers.

The credit of a community represents the total wealth of the community. The wealth of a community consists of all the goods produced or producible by its members. The wealth of Alberta is very great, but its people have so far been denied by an antiquated money system the full enjoyment of it.

55 a Month

Mr. Aberhart intends to challenge the present assumption that the banks are the owners of credit backed by this natural wealth, and to administer it himself as a trustee for the people of Alberta.

He promised during the election to pay every Albertan five pounds a month. I hope and believe that once his plans are in full operation that figure will be substantially raised.

There are various methods by which this could be done. Mr. Aberhart is to some extent controlled by the provisions of the Canadian Bank Act.

In order to circumvent that Act he proposed at the election to issue non-negotiable certificates to the population. These notes could only be used once. A man would draw one from a bank or post office and buy a certain quantity of goods from his grocer or butcher with it.

The shopkeeper would then return it to the treasury and receive a fresh note which he could use once only in exchange. By this method the exclusive right of the Dominion Government to issue money would not be infringed.

If the credit of a rich province is made fully available to its people without artificial restrictions of any kind, there will be no poverty. Every one will have enough to eat, a decent house, opportunities for recreation and adequate leisure.

That, I believe, will happen in Alberta if the new Government sticks to its policy. It will probably take fifteen months before the plan is in full operation and that fifteen months will be a period of great difficulty and bitter strife. The vested interests of the bankers and financiers will not relinquish their monopoly without a struggle.

But there is one very important factor in our favour. During the last five years, throughout the whole American continent, there has grown up a dislike and distrust of the banks, as institutions who have abused their stewardship of the people's wealth.

The psychological atmosphere in Alberta is favorable to our operations and I should say that more than ninety per cent of the population is on our side.

That is very fortunate, for if the majority were smaller, the minority might be tempted to resort to bloodshed and civil war in defence of their privileges, without understanding that no reasonable privilege is being challenged.

In fifteen months from now I believe that Alberta will be a blessed land. Unemployment will no longer be a menace to its citizens. No wheat will rot in its elevators. Fine new roads will enable tourists to appreciate its magnificent scenery and bring further wealth to its people.

It will become one of the show places of the world.

And this brings me to the one really serious difficulty which, I believe, Mr. Aberhart will have to face: I am not frightened of a run on the banks, of a fall in exports, or a shortage of foreign exchange.

I do anticipate a run into the country which may reach formidable dimensions and which it may be difficult to control.

I can imagine men and women from all parts of the American continent who have hitherto led lives cramped by the credit shortage seeking in Alberta prosperity and happiness that they have never known.

Fortunately the country is large and fertile, and the population at present small. Perhaps before the states will have profited by the example of Alberta and the system of social credit will be established elsewhere.

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1936

Why do we say The New Ford V-8 for 1936?

What is new about it?

Of course, the newest engine in the low-price car field is still the V-8 engine. Since Ford made it available to all car users (keeping it as economical as cars with fewer cylinders) the Ford V-8 has been the newest engine on the market, and remains the newest for 1936.

You may buy a car on minor "talking points"—some specially advertised feature "with the car thrown in"—but, after all, it is the engine you buy when you buy a car. Hence we put the engine first.

Other new points about the car make a long list:

Its lines are much more beautiful. The hood is longer and sweeps forward over the distinctive new radiator grille, giving the car a length and grace that are instantly impressive. The fenders are larger, with a wide flare. Horns are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New steel wheels.

Ford upholstery—always of sterling quality and excellent taste—is rich and enduring. The appointments of the car have a new touch of refinement. There is no question about the increased beauty of the Ford V-8 for 1936.

In more practical matters, many improvements have been made.

Steering is made easier by a new steering gear ratio. The cooling system circulates 4½ gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermosyphon action is assisted by two centrifugal water pumps. New style hood louvers permit a rapid air-flow around the engine.

Easier, quieter shifting of Ford gears—The gear shift lever now travels a shorter distance.

The two qualities you want in brakes—Brakes that stop the car with ease and certainty. Ford Super-Safeties. Brakes of the long-tested, fool-proof, mechanical design.

Safety—as always—in the electrically welded, genuine steel body. Safety Glass all around at no extra cost. Hundreds have written grateful letters because this glass has protected the safety of their families.

A car you can drive without strain all day, if you like, in city or country. Steady, holds the road, responds to the driver's touch like a well-trained horse. You don't have to "push" or "fight" the Ford V-8—driver and car easily get on terms of good understanding with each other.

An engine has much to do with the roominess of a car. Very much indeed. A long engine uses up car space. The compact V-8 engine permits much of the ordinary engine space to be used by passengers.

It really is a great car in every way, this 1936 Ford V-8—the finest, safest, most dependable Ford car ever built. Get complete details at your nearest Ford dealer.
